

Our company Acumentis has had the pleasure of working closely with Alana Zelones and her team at The People & Co. Collective (The PACC) for a number of years from both a state and national perspective. During this time, our business has grown on so many levels as a direct result of having the guidance and all-encompassing professional HR services offered by The PACC.

Alana's expertise, commitment and sheer passion in everything she does is evident with each task, irrespective of the nature or complexity of the job. She impresses far beyond our expectations and has contributed greatly to the success of both our business and our people.

The diverse range of HR services provided by The PACC are of key importance in ensuring that our people are well looked after and our stakeholders have peace of mind knowing that the HR function within Acumentis is in the best hands possible.

Alana's personal core values shine through and this integrity is evident in every aspect of her business and the team members she employs – they are all uniquely talented and share her same approach to delivering a quality outcome in every task undertaken.

We look forward to continuing our working relationship with Alana and The PACC team and can confidently recommend her services to other companies.
